VERBAL DESCRIPTION:

This modeled ceramic fragment is composed of an orange jicaro like paste with many white inclusions. It is in the shape of a foot with five ball shaped toes separated by incision. The top of the foot has the remnants of some sort of stuck on thing 1.7cm long and .6cm wide. There is a scar from possibly a similar shape between the 3rd & 4th toes. The other is next to the big toe & second toe, thinking in terms of this as a left foot. (The moldings on top of the foot could be thongs or sandals.) The bottom of the foot at the toes is bulbous as the ball of a human foot is. The foot is solid, not hollow. There is no fire clouding, slip, or paint.
